“COMPARISON OF THE 2017 & 1999 FIDIC CONTRACTS”

(Red & Yellow Books)

OVERVIEW

The introduction of the 2017 2nd Edition of the FIDIC Rainbow Suite of Contracts is a very significant event in the development of Contracts for use in the international construction arena. These new Contracts are substantially larger (approx. 70% more text) & much more complex than the 1999 Contracts & so require careful assessment prior to consideration of their use

To enable professionals to evaluate the differences in the Contracts, ECV has created this comprehensive 2 day course of comparison of the Construction (Red Book) & Plant & Design-Build (Yellow Book) Contracts. The text of the Red & Yellow 2017 Contracts is 95% the same but over 50% different from the 1999 Contracts so although presented in the same format as the 1999 Contracts they may be considered as new Contracts

The course is presented in 8 sessions & includes details of the changes in principle as well as in presentation. The key changes in each of the 21 main Clauses (1999 Contract has 20 Clauses) are identified & flow charts are given where appropriate on the new procedures required. In addition special attention is given to the:

- New requirements for the Parties in making claims & the much expanded requirements of the Engineer in seeking agreements or making determinations.
- Requirement for a Dispute Avoidance/Adjudication Board (DAAB) as a full time Board

SEMINAR TUTOR:

DAVID HESLETT BSc (Hons), C.Eng, FICE
Managing Director, ECV

The tutor is provided by ECV Consultancy Ltd (ECV) in association with FIDIC. ECV specialises in training and management consultancy to the international construction and infrastructure industries. ECV was responsible for the creation of the Module form of training in the 1999 Contracts & has presented its courses in 85 countries involving in excess of 30,000 professionals.

ECV plans to present an equivalent portfolio of new courses on the 2017 Contracts in 2018

COURSE MATERIALS
